 - 2015-16 – $4.6 million
 - 2016-17 (proposed) – $7.15 million
- Three main factors in the proposed increase:
 - $1.5 million allowance for Brighter Choice charter expansion
 - Proposed zero tax-levy increase
 - Investing resources to enhance student achievement

2016-17 budget proposal

- No proposed increase in the tax levy for 2016-17
 - The district's tax cap for 2016-17 is 0.09 percent, which would have generated an additional $102,300 in revenue within the cap.
- Current proposed impact on a home assessed at $150,000*:
 - Without STAR – 0
 - With Basic STAR – $3 decrease
 - With Enhanced STAR for seniors – $16 decrease

 The final tax rate is set in the summer after the New York State Office of Real Property Tax Services finalizes the percentages of local taxes to be paid by homeowners and business owners. This year, your final tax bill also may be affected by the City of Albany's reassessment.*

Tax-Levy History

During a time of recession, growing enrollment, closing of charter schools and continuous unfunded mandates, the district has been able to maintain most programs and control tax-levy increases.

- 2011-12 0.00% (no increase)
- 2012-13 1.50% tax-levy increase
- 2013-14 2.95% tax-levy increase
- 2014-15 0.87% tax-levy increase
- 2015-16 0.98% tax-levy increase
- 2016-17 0.00% proposed tax-levy increase

The average increase in tax levy over six years would be 1.05% if the 2016-17 proposal is adopted as presented. During this time, enrollment has increased by 1,000 students, or 12 percent.

Proposition #2

In addition to the budget vote, this year's ballot also will include a second proposition related to the school district.

- Proposition #2 will ask voters to consider a no-cost proposition that would allow the district to set aside more money in its Capital Reserve Fund.
- Voters approved the establishment of this fund in 2013 to support long-term building projects.
- Proposition #2 would increase the maximum amount of the Capital Reserve Fund to $18 million.
- The annual Albany Public Library budget vote and trustee elections also will be on the ballot. These are completely separate from the school budget.
